Pallozzi, Daphne
Chief Executive Officer, Ardmore Enterprises, Inc.
For at least 20 years, Daphne Pallozzi has provided leadership and direction to organizations that helped create, contribute toward, and support individuals with intellectual and other developmental disabilities. Whether it was with the Arc of Howard County, as Director of the Joseph P. Kennedy Institute of Catholic Charities, or as the CEO of Ardmore Enterprises, Inc., Pallozzi has developed and implemented plans which allowed for the creation or expansion of academic, employment and domestic opportunities giving children and adults with intellectual and developmental disabilities a foundation upon which to build productive lives.

93. Parker, Jr., Esq., Midgett S.
Partner, LNWES and Blocher, LLP
A partner in the firm’s Annapolis, Maryland office, Parker has won numerous major land use cases before local councils. He has lobbied federal, state and local legislative bodies in regard to affordable housing, and land use regulations.

94. Perrin, Quianne
Founder, FLYCANDY
In 2008, Quianne Perrin founded FLYCANDY, a weekly lifestyle and entertainment newsletter covering news from the high-end lifestyle community. In 2010, she embarked on a 12-month project titled #TheBlackGirlMagic, which humanizes black women through a monthly feature. In 2013, she will be featured on the cover of Black Enterprise Magazine. She was named one of the FortyUnder40 leaders in Prince George’s County and was included as one of the top 100 Most Powerful Women of Color by Black Enterprise Magazine.

95. Peterson, Milt
Founder and Chairman, the Peterson Cos.
The visionary developer who transformed 300 acres off the Potomac River into the spectacular National Harbor, Milt Peterson was named the 2007 “Newsmaker of the Year” by the Washington Business Journal. In 2012, Peterson partnered with MGM Resorts to bring a world-class destination hub to the county. Through National Harbor, Peterson has delivered to Prince George’s a landmark that’s steadily becoming an international destination.

96. Phillips, D.A.
Co-Founder & Associate Publisher, Prince George’s Suite Magazine
D.A. Phillips has been a part of Prince George’s Suite Magazine since its inception in 2005. A behind-the-scenes personality rather than a front line general, Phillips performs a myriad of duties with the company. She is hands-on from planning to production to print to distribution of each edition of the award-winning magazine. Phillips believes Prince George’s County stands on the precipice of becoming a destination not just for entertainment but more importantly for new families, retirees, students and those who want to live, actively participate and grow with a community that is coming into its own. Phillips is also employed with the Department of Homeland Security.
